HAWAIIAN BY BIRTH

Certificates Are Once More Issued.

TWO YOUTHS TO GO TO COLLEGE

Method to Prevent False Swearing in the Matter of Obtaining the Coveted Papers.

Certificates of Hawaiian birth will be presented by Chinese at the custom house at San Francisco for the first time upon the arrival of the Peking. The young men who will present them are Pin Lin Chin and En Sang Ching, who leave in the ship today to enter the University of California. The certificates were issued on Saturday, upon the most undoubted proof and are the first which have been sent out of the office of the Territory since the decision which prevents action on the case of fraud in obtaining the coveted paper.

There was some little trouble before the transaction was complete. When the certificates had been granted and presented at the custom house for visa, they were referred to the Bureau of Immigration and there was at once trouble. A subordinate wanted a different form and rushed off to the office of the Executive of the Territory, asking that the form be changed. This was not done, as when the form was made up there was reference made to the Treasury Department at Washington, and while there could be no directions to a Territorial officer issued from that Department, the letter which gave approval to the form advised that the issuance continue in the form which had been submitted.

With this tacit approval of form there was no change made upon the request. Then there was a demand made that the certificate include a statement of what was to be done in the United States by the young men, but there a bar was in the way, as the Territorial officer could not use a telegraphic hand and insure his forecast. Finally when the certificates were sent out, in triplicate, the issuance of the final authority, in the shape of the visa, was made.

In view of the many requests for the certificates of Hawaiian birth, the Territorial office has decided to again issue them. This time Acting Governor Cooper will himself guard against any danger of fraud. Before this the proof took the form of an affidavit, which was made before a notary. Now there will be necessary proof taken before the secretary, Miss Kelly, who has been made a notary for the purpose of taking charge of the business. There will be in this manner proof of any false swearing if such should be done, and prosecution would follow in such order as to discourage any attempt to resurrect a Hawaiian-born Chinese for the purpose of obtaining a certificate of birth, which now is of added value since it means American citizenship as well. In pursuance of his plan, Acting Governor Cooper has prepared the following statement of his method of procedure, which will be promulgated at once:

"Applications will be received for the granting of certificates of Hawaiian birth on Tuesday of each week when, accompanied by an affidavit setting forth the facts relied upon by the applicant, together with three full-face photographs printed upon free silver paper 3 inches by 3 1/4 inches. On the receipt of the application a day will be set for the hearing of the same, at which time the applicant will be required to appear in person, together with at least two credible witnesses, for the purpose of substantiating the claims set forth in his application."

WHY USE A NOM DE PLUME?

Civis Secundus Answers Note in the Anglican Church Chronicle.

Editor Advertiser: With visor down, and not for the first time, I would break a lance with any who would cast aspersions upon those who choose to write on any subject under an assumed name, for it may be an aspersion to suggest that, because a writer avails himself of such undoubted right to retain his incognito, he does so because he has not the courage of his convictions.

The reverend editor of the Anglican Church Chronicle in an annotation of the April issue, subsequently reproduced in your columns, says, "It would be very much more satisfactory if persons who have opinions on church matters would speak out plainly and under their own names; then one knows what to do."

What, sir, has a writer's name necessarily to do with opinions on any matter, providing he has a grasp of his subject, founded on a knowledge of facts, with a recognition of their sequence and relative significance, and is evidently in rapport with recognized authorities on the subject of which he writes? The question of moment for those interested is not who the writer is, but what of truth there is in the statements advanced, and the conclusions drawn. The writer may be quite unknown or not possess those characteristics that make men popular, and may feel that, sometimes at any rate, it is just as well not to intrude his personality upon those whom, generally speaking, he knows he does not please. And yet, Mr. Editor, he may, in spite of possible unacceptance of personal peculiarities, be able to supplement his fellow's greater stock of knowledge, on some matter to which he has given special attention. Who such person is, or what his name, has little interest for the public or the different circles that make it up. A thorn by any other name might be as cruel! If a writer sound to the bottom the question he has in hand, and allows not conviction to outstrip evidence, those who read his words will care little who the correspondent may be.

Is not this renewed commentary of the reverend editor of the Anglican Church Chronicle on those writing anonymously another example of misdirected energy, somewhat akin to Don Quixote's assaults upon windmills, for which, possibly, the reverend gentleman takes writers giving their thought over a "nom de plume"?

The reverend editor concludes his annotation with these words: "We know full well that it is often annoying to have the courage of one's opinions, but when anonymous letters do no good they may just as well not be written." Surely "there needs no ghost, my lord, come from the grave to tell us this."

It is to be hoped not many find it annoying to have the courage of their opinions, and I certainly trust such is not the case with your correspondent.

LAND FOR A CITY OF TENTS

Mr. Desky Offers Free Sites, Free Water and Lights at Cost.

Editor Advertiser: Appreciating fully the benefits and advantages to be derived from a residence upon the higher elevations, where pure air and healthful breezes, together with beautiful scenery are to be obtained, I can heartily endorse your views regarding the establishing of summer homes in such a locality as set forth in your paper this morning.

Believing that Pacific Heights affords a solution of this question to persons of moderate means as well as to others, and desiring to see a practicable demonstration made of the views you so well express, I propose to set apart several acres of ground at different altitudes, ranging from 500 to 1,000 feet, upon Pacific Heights, that are well adapted for camping purposes, the use of which I will give free of charge during the summer months to persons who desire to avail themselves of it. I have an abundance of good pure spring water, which I will gladly furnish free of charge, and, if desired, I will supply electric lights and telephone service at cost.

As regards the matter of transportation, I will say that the locations that I have set apart are conveniently near the electric railway, and camping outfits and provisions will be delivered at a very moderate cost, no charge being made for small packages carried when traveling upon passenger cars, and as the rate is only five cents each way, the expense of getting to and from the camps will be exceedingly modest.

I should very much like to see a practical demonstration attempted of establishing a tented city upon the high elevations, where conditions are so much more salubrious and healthful than in many portions of the city, and will assist to the utmost of my ability any attempt at carrying out such a plan as you propose.

While it may not be advisable that the property should be offered indiscriminately, even for this purpose, I shall be pleased to receive application from parties that are desirous of availing themselves of the opportunity now offered. Very truly yours,

CHAS. S. DESKY.
Honolulu, H. I., August 5, 1901.

THE HAWAIIAN'S FLOWERS.

The Pretty Way They Festoon and Wreath Their Dinner Tables.

Our new possessions have some picturesque customs that are practical. We would do well to adopt, for instance, the flowery ways of expressing good feeling in Honolulu and the oddly pretty ways of serving simple meals with the most picturesque of services in the Philippines.

The Hawaiians are famous for their carnations, and more especially for their unique ways of using them; they string them together like long daisy chains, decorating themselves, as well as their tables with the pretty garlands.

At one dinner to which the writer was invited in Honolulu the hostess had chosen scarlet carnations for her table. A big silver bowl in the center was full of them, while a wreath of them went round the base of the stand and four more stretched from the handles of the bowl to the silver candelabra in each corner of the table. In addition to this each hors d'oeuvre plate had the same wreath round it, which each lady untied and hung round her neck, where it lay like a soft feathery bon. Some of the men even did the same.

The wreaths have to be made in a particular way, and in the Hawaiian Islands the work of making up the leis (as they are called there) has become a trade among the natives, who sit at the corner of the street and sell back their treasures to the foreigners, who flock from far and wide to see the Paradise of the Pacific.

The garlands are threaded on a piece of bass with a fine cane needle, and the calyx of the carnation is entirely removed, so that the petals of the flower fall loosely and give the effect of feathers. The needle is run straight through and comes out in the center, so that each flower on the thread is on the top of the other. Of course the closer they are together the better the result, but this has to depend greatly on the quantity of blooms at one's disposal. Sometimes there are a hundred flowers in one wreath.

Other flowers can also be used in the same fashion, and when marigolds are threaded into such wreaths they look like great orange ropes, though not so light and feathery looking as the carnations. In any case, the candle shades should match the color of the flowers used.

It would be a pretty fashion, too, if these flower bonnets could be introduced and worn in this country. Fancy a white or yellow bonnet, with a light summer gown, while every movement of the wearer would emit the fragrant clove scent which we all like so well. It would be a great boon to the florists if the idea could be taken up. Moreover, as these wreaths necessarily require a quantity of flowers, their expense would prevent them from becoming too common.—New York Commercial Advertiser.
